Dillman Road Wastewater Treatment Plant Operations Temporarily Suspended

Bloomington, Ind. - The City of Bloomington Utilities is investigating the source of hydrocarbon odors coming from the sewage that flows to the Dillman Road Wastewater Treatment Plant. Plant operators detected the odor late Sunday and suspended operation of the plant by diverting flow to the equalization basin while the source of the contamination is determined. There is currently no risk to the plant, its operators, or the water in Clear Creek. CBU is working with the Indiana Department of Environmental Management to determine the next steps while we work to locate the source of the odor, implement remedial actions, and resume plant operations.
